Teams The USA invented the Global Positioning System (GPS) in the 1970s. At first, it was a military project, but now anyone can use the system to find out their exact locations, and Steve tracks their movements. For GPS to work, your receiver (or smartphone) must be in contact with four or more satellites in space. Then it uses the data to calculate the exact time and position on Earth. However, it is not enough for survival situations (escaping the jungles or deserts) because you must know your direction (which way you are moving) and your speed (how fast you are moving). GPS provides this information by tracking your position over time. For modern explorers, a smartphone and GPS are as important as a compass, torch, and map. With the right applications, your smartphone will help you survive. In Steve Grant's new survival book, three people will face a sixteen-day jungle adventure.

One of my favourite websites is lyricstraining.com. It's great because you can learn English while you listen to your favourite songs. You choose a song and then listen to the song and complete the lyrics. You can also watch the video of the song.

The good points include the fact that there are lots of up-to-date groups you can listen to such as The Script or One Direction. In addition, you can choose the level: beginner, intermediate or expert, depending on your level of English. Another good feature is that you can repeat a line of the song as often as you want, until you know the missing word. Also, the website is very easy to search and you can listen to songs in different languages, for instance in Spanish, German and Italian.
